J. in which he writes that the company, which if was extended to the company, which it was extended to the statement of the company, which it was extended to the statement in the company of the board of the many courtesies shown toward our negotiations. "Yours truly, Belleville, N. J. In which he writes that the company, which it was expected would locate here, is going to some other city. On Wednesday in New York Mr. Schuler made a statement to a Norwich man to the effect that the company had decided not to come here, as it was necessary to move at once, and it had been impossible to get a place to locate here, and it had been necessary to go elsewhere. The letter to Mr. Tibbits is dated March 3 and in it he states that the company would have been glad to move here had a place been available. The jetter ends as follows:

"Personaliv. I regret this curcons which put that location beyond further consideration, although the building is reest, but the matter very much, but circumstance and that this will not end our acquaintance and that the future may hold in store something for us just as promising.

Rev. G. H. Ewing Speaks on Citizen-ship—Lenton Sermon by Rev. W. A. Keefe-Whist-Personals.

At the Thursday evening service in the First Congregational church Rev. G. H. Ewing said in part:

"For my citizenship is in heaven. This government is in the hands of God. Thy kingdom come on earth. God's kingdom is a heavenly and earthly one. We have a part in making our government a heavenly one. Men should be in power who have high ideals.

"Our country needs a practical training in citizenship. The public schools do little towards this. How many high school graduates are prepared to vote? Since we are part of the life of the government, we must take a share in it. By helping form public opinion we get the true idea of loyal citizenship."
